
This is a comprehensive and practical introduction to central themes in the principle and practice of Teaching English as a foreign/second Language. It is written both for teachers and for those taking professional courses in ELT. The first part, focused on the principles on which current methods and materials are based, explores such topics as educational frameworks: the communicative approach; post-communicative trends in syllabus and materials design and the evaluation and adaptation of materials. Part Two relates these principles to individual language skills. It shows how theories concerned with the development of reading, speaking, listening and writing have affected the design and use of teaching materials. The final part of the book examines different methods available to teachers for organizing and managing the ELT classroom, discussing group and pair work; individualization; classroom observation and the teacher's role in the contemporary ELT context.

When highly successful people from all walks of life are asked how they were able to attain such lofty achievements, they inevitably pay tribute to the influential role played by their parents, teachers, mentors, and other key figures in their lives. This highlights the importance of developing effective youth development strategies that can help bridge the gap between beliefs and behaviors. In this regard, Mobilizing Adults for Positive Youth Development Strategies for Closing the Gap between Beliefs and Behaviors, by E. Gil Clary and Jean E. Rhodes, is a valuable resource for educators and policymakers. This book offers practical guidance on how to create supportive environments that foster growth and development in young people. By integrating the latest research findings and best practices, the authors provide a comprehensive framework for developing effective strategies to help youth reach their full potential.
